I am grateful to Jonathan Everts and Andreas Pott for their interactive comments on my paper.

I have responded to all of the points they raised and also taken the opportunity to update some of the references and rephrase a few points.

Specifically, I have:

- Added a paragraph on ‘moral panics’ spelling out the contribution of approaches informed by the ‘cultural turn’ (where Jonathan Everts thought the current paragraph ended rather abruptly)
- Added some examples of geographical (and related) work informed by actor-network theory and engaging with embodiment, emotion and affect (with reference to the work of Emma Roe, Stassart & Whatmore, and Elspeth Probyn)

- Added a paragraph to spell out the geographical aspects of the two projects in section 3 (regarding geographical provenance, locality etc)
- Integrated my contribution to the plenary discussion into the main paper (following Andreas ott’s suggestions and making some minor revisions to improve the flow)
- Corrected the two spelling/typographical errors.
